

By default, a new content item is in the group state. Its owner can make it private, or submit it for publication. A reviewer or manager can then review the item, and choose to show it to site subscribers, the public, or reject the item.